SUBJECT: DOWNTOWN PARKING CHANGES

Please be advised that as of midnight on Sunday, October 30, 1988, the parking lot on the site of the downtown library project will be closed to prepare for construction. The Physical Plant Department has compiled a list of alternate parking lots nearby. In some cases, these lots may provide special rates for members of the Concordia community.

There will be no change in parking policy because of the new building project. All parking lots, including the underground spaces at the Henry F. Hall Building, will continue to operate on a first-come, first-served basis. The Conference and Information Centre in the Hall Building lobby will continue to sell tickets for those parking lots which have agreements with the University.

In addition to Concordia's library project, construction on the block surrounding the Pascal store on Ste-Catherine Street and the expansion of the Montréal Museum of Fine Arts is scheduled to begin within the next several months. This may result in the further reduction of alternate parking space. Should this occur, faculty, staff and students will be notified in advance.

For the list of alternate parking lots available to you, refer to the October 13th issue of The Thursday Report.
